WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 1.

THE WASHINGTON Star, in alluding to the injurious effect the unsettled condition of the Virginia debt has had, and is having, upon the State, says: "But it is not generally believed that the repudiators speak for the great body of Virginians." They certainly do not for the great body of intelligent white Virginians, for such men are aware of the harm attempted repudiation has done their State, and know that almost any settlement would be better for her than none at all. The democratic party in Virginia accepted the Riddleberger bill, but with the understanding that it should be sustained by the courts. But the highest court in the land having rendered that bill null and void, all further attempts to enforce it must, therefore, be utterly void; and wise democrats know this as well as any body else. The legislature, at its recent session, having refused to accept the terms of set tlement offered by the creditors, should have submitted those terms to the people at next fall's election. Virginians would then have had an opportunity of telling the world whether or not they are really in fa-last week shows that wherever the democrats were divided the republicans were united, and succeeded in electing their candidates. In many counties the democrats had no regularly nominated tickets two, and sometimes three, of their party being candidates for the same office. In all such cases the republicans voted to a man for their own candidate, and, of course, elected him. Such action on the part of the democrats not only invited defeat, but, by engendering dissentions and ill feeling in their party, weakened it for the hard campaign it has to go through next fall. Discipline and marked lines are as essential to success in politics as

A COLORED Baptist preacher from New Orleans, while speaking at a Baptist anniand persecuting his race. Rev. Dr. Dickinson, of Richmond, who was present, instantly pronounced the accusation false, and proved that it is by patent facts, and then proceeded to show how such ground less accusations naturally tend to withdraw from the colored Baptists of the South the moral and material support of their white brethren, of which they stand so much in need. The evil effects of the blind leading the blind were never more glaringly illustrated than in the case of the negroes of the South and their shepherds.

MR. RATHBONE, who has recently been appointed consul general to Paris, an office worth at least fifteen thousand dollars a year, is such a negative democrat that many, even of his home acquaintances, did not know, until he was appointed, that he had ever been a democrat. The ilea of the present administration seems to be that democrats are so enamored of their party that they will cheerfully submit to anything in order to be permitted to continue their

THE STATE democratic committee has determined to call a State democratic convention, and Mr. Barbour, its chairman, is in favor of such a convention being held in August. Gov. Lee and others of the party are opposed to a convention this summer. Well, convention or no convention, unless something be done to consolidate the party, dispel its dissatisfaction, if not disaffection, and revive, stimulate, and enthuse it for next fall's campaign, it goes without saying that it will enter that campaign with no very bright prospect of success. Providence helps those who help themselves.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has permitted his wife to make a pilgrimage to the grave of John Brown, and, the newspaper accounts say, she was delighted with the visit, and brought a flower away from the mound as a souvenir. It will be remembered that he refused to allow her to visit the Governor's mansion, in Richmond, lest she should meet there the daughter of ex-President Jefferson

IN VIEW of the fact that the Alexandria Light Infantry scored 612 5 points out of a possible 820, and that they stood 12 in a class of 30 companies at the recent national drill at Washington, why their drilling should be singled out as the especial object of adverse criticism, and that, too, at their own home, is something for which there is no good reason.

MR. BLAINE, as late as yesterday, said he had never felt sure that he was not elected President in 1884. But there are many other things about which Mr. Blaine is not sure, though every body else is; the Mulligan letters, for instance.

erable attention. He says that more hay has been brought there by the steamboats The slate-pencil this spring than ever before, as stock raising has also increased there, and as the hay and fodder crops last year were short. He also says the grocery trade of that region, which of recent years had gone to Baltimore, has now in great part returned to Alexand-ria, the merchants of which city keep it well drummed, and can afford to deliver the same class of goods cheaper than their Baltimore rivals. In talking about the condition of the section of Virginia referred to, he said its future might be prospercus, but he was afraid such a future was a long way off. Most of the land is rented by tenant farmers, who only cultivate the best land, which they have worn out by continual use, no rest and no fertilizers. The few prosperous men there, he says, were the overseers and tenants of the former land owners, some of whom now own the plantations and live in the houses of their old employers, who have become poor and are growing poorer, as the profits of the land they still own will not allow them to pay the high wages now demanded by farm hands, who by one or two day's work the at cystering can make enough money to support them for a week.

Ex-representative Barbour, of Virginia, is disposed to look upon the recent town and county elections in his State as decidedly favorable to the maintenance of democratic control of the State government. were considerable gains he says in doubtful counties, and hardly any losses where the democrats were well organized and had regularly nominated tickets. Mr. Barbour, as previously stated in this correspondence, is in favor of holding a State convention of the party next August, and agrees with the GAZETTE that the apportionment of voters to delegates should be increased, so that the number of delegates may be smaller and none be chosen except those who intend to take an active part in the proceedings, and matters to be determined may be patiently AN INSPECTION of the returns of the county and town elections held in this State as usually composes a democratic State con-

Senator Daniel, of Virginia, left here this morning for Richmond. The Senator, in a conversation with a friend yesterday, said he was well satisfied with the result of the recent elections in his State, and thought they indicated that a strong effort next fall on the part of the democrats would secure the election of a democratic legislature. The Senator thinks Mr. Cleveland has made a good President and will be renominated.

The Death of Col. Austin Smith.

To the editor of The Charleston News and Courier An item appeared in your paper to-day under the heading "Cream of the Mails," in which the following statement is made in reference to Col. Austin Smith, son of the late ex-Governor Smith, of Virginia: "Austin Smith, the great bowie-knife fighter, was killed at the battle of Seven allegiance to it. But, unfortunately for the party, democrats are subject to the same emotions that affect other and less patriotic people.

Similar lighter, was killed at the battle of Saven Pines." Please allow me to correct this mistake. Col. Smith was killed at the battle of Gaines's Farm the second of the seven days around Richmond. A more courteous or kindly gentleman than Col. Smith I never knew. As an instance of his considerate kindness I may mention the following: I was a private in the Hampton Legion Cavalry and a courier with General Whiting when Colonel Smith was killed. On the night before I reached our bivouse at Topotony Creek at dark without a blanket. Col. Smith observing his with me, and we slent at dark without a blanket. Col. Smith observing it insisted on sharing his with me, and we slept together, heads in saddles, till 4 o'clock in the morning, when his servant led up his favorite horse, a light dappled grey, a magnificent animal, dead lame. After examining him he told the servant to saddle another horse, and turning to me, with a disturbed look, said: "Fairly, that's a bad ome; I will be killed to-day." "Oh, no," I said; "on the contrary, I think it fortunate you can't ride the gray to-day; en him you would have been a conspicaous mark for every sharpshooter; you will be safer on the other horse." But, alas' his premonition was verified. That day the gallant gentleman fell, shot through the shoulder, and died before the morning of the next day, lamented by everybody who knew him. Of him might we truly say with Sir Ector: "He was the meekest man and the gentlest that ever ato in hall with ladies, and he was the sternest knight to his mortal foe that ever put lance in knight to his mortal foe that ever put laure in rest."

A Boulanger Demonstration.

There was a brilliant assemblage at the military fete at the Opera House in Paris last night. General Boulanger was absent. While the company was assembling thousands of persons gathered in the vicinity of the Opera House, shouting "Resignation!" "Long live Boulanger!" "We will have him!" &c. At 11 p. m. the crowd outside had greatly increased in numbers, and had become so turbulent that the republican guard which was held in readiness in the court-yard of the Opera House was ordered out to disperse the mob, which task was accomplished amid volleys of hisses from the crowd. At midnight the crowd began to reassemble, and was soon much larger than before, and it seemed that there would be a riotous demonstration when the guests departed from the Opera House. the streets from the Madelaine and the Faubourg St. Honore to the Elysee were guarded by soldiers. During the night cries of "A l'Elysee" were raised by the crowd, and fully one thousand young men formed a procession and marched at a swinging pace in the direction of the palace, shouting as they went, "We want Boulanger." How FOOLISH NEGROES HARM THEIR OWN RACE.—At the Baptist anniversaries in progress in Minneapolis last week, Rev. Mr. Jackson, a prominent colored Baptist pastor of New Orleans, spoke from the persecution his race has received of their white brethren, and of their hatred of their colored brethren.

Dr. A. E. Dickinson, of Richmond, Va., arose and said he wished here and now to pronounce the statements of the colored brother false. Continuing, Dr. Dickinson ted brightly with his keepers. His last resaid: "There is no man living, I might quest was that as few persons as possible claim, who has had better opportunities of knowing how the white Baptists of the South feel towards their colored brethren than myself, and I tell you they are as friendly to this race as are you white Bap-tists of the North. Since the war we have not done all we might have done for the religious culture of the negro, and one reason of it is to be found in just such speeches as this colored man has made here to-day. What he has said will do harm here at the North and it will do harm in the South, where Baptists do not enjoy being put in a fa'se position."

Rev. Mr. Jackson: "I do not mean that we are persecuted much to day. There has been improvement, but the most the white Baptists of the South can claim is that they are doing nothing. I who stand before you to day have stood on the block alongside of my wife and been sold to the highest bidder, and I can never forget the cruelty of the

The President of the Society: "I need not tell you that Dr. Dickinson is a warm friend of our work in the South, and his paper has been unwavering in its advocacy of every effort to elevate the colored people, and he has proven a true friend to us and to our Southern, missionaries."

Dr. Dickinson: "It is my desire to help you and these colored people that lead me to protest against such misrepresentations of Southern whites. They are not caring much what you say about them—they have gotten use to being misrepresented—but it does harm in many ways and gives us too good an excuse for withholding the sid we might give the colored brother."

Opposed to a Convention.

Gov. Lee, when asked by a Richmond State reporter for his opinion as to the propriety of calling a State convention of the democratic party, said yesterday: "I understand that the democratic State central committee decided when they last met in Richmond that a State convention should be called. I suppose now the only way not to have the convention would be for the committee to reconsider their action. It would be perfectly agreeable to me to have the matter decided by those who have control Louisville, Ky., a few days ago, and immedicieved, however, from all parts of the State ately sought the woods.
